About the Speaker:

Maeve Lally qualified as a pharmacist from Trinity College, Dublin in 1998. She completed a PhD in Pharmaceutical Chemistry in 2003 and subsequently joined the Health Products Regulatory Authority (formerly the Irish Medicines Board) as a pharmaceutical assessor for the quality of human medicines. Since 2007 she has focussed primarily on biological medicines and completed her MSc in Biopharmaceutical Technology with IT Sligo in 2010. Maeve is currently the Senior Pharmaceutical Assessor with responsibility for biological medicines, and serves as the HPRA member at the Biologics Working Party of the European Medicines Agency. She has previously served as the alternate member on the Committee for Advanced Therapies at the EMA.
